

As a citizen and consumer in Indiana, I oppose the CBA's challenge to Indiana's Telephone Privacy law. The privacy list is an extension of an individual's right to free association and privacy. This includes the ability to avoid interaction with others when on one's own property (residence).

If the banks of CBA continue to press this issue, I for one will switch all business to credit unions and urge others to do so.